

Taffy and the Tapir Party

written by Matthew Cox illustrated by Julia Henauer

The first publication from StrangeFish Books. Set off on an adventure with Taffy the Tapir as he makes his way to the Elephant Ferry, to go to the annual tapir party. On the way, he uses his special tapir skills to help his friends who have all lost something special to them. Penelope Pelican has lost her hat, Cara Capybara has lost her wellies, and Leonard Lemur has lost his glasses. Spending all this time helping his friends, will Taffy still be able to reach the Elephant Ferry on time?

A feel good book about adventure, friendship and working together. Full of Julia's beautiful illustrations that really bring Taffy's world to life. Featuring lots of fun detail and animals to find in each illustration.

Hardback / 36 Pages / 287 x 216 x 10 mm / £12.99

About Matthew Cox

Creative designer and maker, now making his author debut with Taffy and the Tapir Party. A great challenge, but he enjoyed the process immensely. He is currently balancing work with managing the book launch, creating all the promotional material and marketing. Originally from Brighton but now lives in south Somerset.

About Julia Henauer

A freelance illustrator and motion graphic designer originally from Switzerland, now living in the UK. Taffy and the Tapir Party is Julia's first children's book, which she illustrated in her spare time. She is looking forward to working on more in the future and hopes to transition to illustration full-time.

About StrangeFish Books

StrangeFish Books is the self-publishing name for Matthew Cox and Julia Henauer, a couple from Ilminster, Somerset, UK. Taffy and the Tapir Party is the first in a range of books we hope to publish in the coming years. The idea started from Julia always wanting to illustrate her own picture book, so we wrote one! Our goal is to make fun, subtly educational books about animals and the world around us. Featuring animals and subjects not often seen in children's picture books.
